Nupur is a teacher, writer, and founder of the Image Learning Center, a site that specializes in Photoshop. She writes at www.nupur.com. They are often used to fix flaws in the photo or to make minor changes that aren't obvious to the naked eye. Layers: This is the bread and butter of digital image editing. Layers enable you to apply one change to an image, followed by a second, and so on. If one layer is changed, all of the other layers (including the ones below it) are affected as well. You can also create additional layers to have multiple layers of changes. Effects: These are special effects that you apply to an image that you can then flip back and forth with the Hides and Shows command. Examples of effects include burning, recreating old film look effects, and so on. You can also produce unique effects with layers just as you do in a traditional 2D painting application.

. The district court declined to give an instruction on the defendant's theory that he acted out of fear of imminent personal injury to his family. Although the defendant discussed at trial his fear of personal injury to his family, his theory was that the shooting was an accident. In declining to give the requested instruction, the district court said that a defendant's subjective fear was a "double-edged sword" and that if the jury found the defendant's fear unreasonable, it would be more likely to find him guilty of second-degree murder. "It is a well-established principle of Michigan law that a trial court's refusal to instruct the jury on a defendant's theory of the case cannot be deemed error in the absence of a request for such an instruction." People v Jackson, 393 Mich 124, 129; 223 NW2d 290 (1974). The defendant's theory, that he accidentally shot Lopez, also is inconsistent with the coroner's finding of the cause of Lopez's death as a gunshot wound from a close range and with the gunshot wound to the head being a shot fired from a distance. The theory that the defendant acted out of fear for his family's safety was never raised at trial. See People v Goodchild, 257 Mich App 401, 427; 670 NW2d 866 (2003), vacated in part on other grounds by 477 Mich 1056 (2007) (stating that the defendant's "alleged fear of imminent death, if actually based on the fear that [a victim] intended to kill him, would be illogical"). The trial court's determination that the jury was not likely to understand the instruction was not an abuse of discretion. We have reviewed the record as required by Ginther, 390 Mich at 436, and we do not find any other non-frivolous issue for appeal. III. We affirm.
